In view of the President's veto the following explicit statement by the extremely conservative Washington correspondent of the extremely conservative Cincinnati Commercial, becomes interesting :

"The Bureau Bill was originally prepared by Gen. Howard, and revised in consultation with Senator Trumbull. It was then submitted to the President, who examined it with considerable care, and approved it cordially."

That is from a letter dated February 12.

seven days before the veto. It is a matter of some interest to know whether this positive statement that the Freedmen's Bill was at one time approved by the President will be denied—or can be. If he approved it once, when did he change his opinion, and why?—[Tribune.

have supplied cargoes of guano at an average of four hundred ships per annum, with a freightage of not less than $3,000,000, the value of such cargoes in Europe being upwards of $30,000,000 in gold. They are moreover more densely populated than any others of like extent, having upwards of 2000 residents, about 600 of whom are Chinese laborers in the employ of the government contractor for the loading of the shipping.

The steamer Madison and J. R. Gilmore have been raised and will leave for Cincinnati to-morrow for repairs.
